인사말 Welcome Message

Thank you for attending the 2025 International Academic Conference hosted by the Humanities Research Institute at Ajou University.

This event is held as part of the Humanities and Social Research Institute Support Project, funded by the National Research Foundation of Korea. It aims to explore the convergence of the humanities and digital technology, and to seek new directions in the field of digital history.

Under the theme <From Archives to Numbers: Bridging Traditional Sources and Digital Analysis>, the conference will take place over two days, from Friday, May 23 to Saturday, May 24, 2025, at Ajou University.

This conference aims to explore and improve interdisciplinary approaches to digital methodologies in the humanities, and to provide a venue for presenting research on the process of transforming texts into quantitative data. In addition, it seeks to promote active academic exchange among domestic and international digital history scholars and to expand the possibilities for joint research.

We hope this event will serve as a catalyst for new insights and collaborations in digital historical research, and we extend our sincere appreciation to all of you for joining us.

May 2025,

Sangkuk Lee, Director,
Humanities Research Institute, Ajou University
